

MRS. HARDING BETTER: OPERATION WILL BE DELAYED

M'CABE DIED LAST NIGHT FROM WOUND
INFLECTED ON SELFYoung Veteran Passed Away at Hospital About 8:30 P. M.

Daniel S. McCabe, whose almost lifeless body was found lying beneath a clump of bushes on the Chicago & Northwestern right of way about 80 yards east of the Peoria avenue overhead bridge, died at the Dixon hospital last evening about 8:30. The young man never regained consciousness and while his condition was much improved yesterday, toward evening he sank rapidly and death ended his suffering.

Coroner Samuel J. Whetston conducted an inquisition over the remains this morning at the Preston mortuary, the jury returning a verdict finding that death was caused by a gun shot wound in the right side of the head, self inflicted with a .32 caliber revolver, with suicidal intent. The note which was found in a shirt pocket on the body Saturday afternoon shortly after its discovery was proof of the premeditated act.

Wife Gave Evidence.
The wife of the young man testified that he came home a week ago last Friday from his work and would not speak to her. He had been wanting her to go away with him from Dixon, but she did not choose this course and told him that she was content to remain here. According to her testimony, he had never quarreled, although he had been morose and sullen at times, but these spells were only of short duration. Following his arrest last week on a charge of wife abandonment he divided his savings with his wife, giving her one-half and keeping his half. Before leaving her, he had written a note, saying that he would not live with her but would provide for her a part of his wages.

After he was released from the abandonment proceedings, he gave her his share of his savings, keeping only $10 from which he purchased the revolver and a box of cartridges for the purpose of ending his life. Mrs. McCabe said that their married life had been most happy and congenial and that all of her husband's friends held him in high esteem. He had left his job as fireman at the Borden Milk plant and turned his wages over to his wife before committing the rash act. She last saw him alive Friday morning about 10:30, according to her statement before the jury.

The funeral will be held Friday with interment in Oakwood cemetery.

Think Great Britain
Will Soon Pay Uncle

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 12.—Great Britain probably will begin the payment of interest on her war debt to this country before arrangements are made for the funding of the $5,000,000,000 of obligations, it was indicated today at the treasury.

On October 15, officials declared, the first installment of interest on the British debt, amounting to $65,000,000 falls due and, although a British financial mission has been expected to leave England in time to begin funding negotiations with the American debt commission by the latter part of this month, so far this country has not been notified of its impending departure. With September nearly all gone officials expressed the belief that funding arrangements could not be worked out with Great Britain before the latter part of October.

JUDGE WILKERSON TO ALLOW GOVERNMENT
TO PRESENT PROOFSDefers Hearing on Plea for Modification of His Injunction.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Sept. 12.—Judge James H. Wilkerson today deferred hearing on the motion of attorneys for the rail strike leaders for modification of the temporary restraining order pending completion of the government's effort to show that the dominant purpose of the alleged conspiracy is the destruction of interstate commerce.

Citing Supreme Court decisions in the Coronado coal case, retail lumber dealers' case and the Patton Cotton Corner prosecution, Judge Wilkerson said the question raised by the government's allegation was a vital one and should be settled before the request for modification of the present order and be acted on.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Sept. 12.—With the government's temporary injunction against striking railway shippers extended for another ten-day period beginning today, hearing on Attorney General Daugherty's application for a permanent restraining order continued before Judge Wilkerson today with a vigorous effort on the part of counsel for the strikers to obtain modification of the order.

In extending the injunction, Judge Wilkerson did not attempt to pass on any merits of the contentions of either government or defense attorneys beyond temporarily denying the defense motion to dismiss the proceedings.

As the second day of the hearing began, Attorney General Daugherty had made no suggestion or recommendation for modification of the bill, despite his statement at Washington last week that it was not the purpose of the government to obtain modification of the order.

PATIENTS AT COLONY
MUTINIED LAST EVE;
FOURTEEN ESCAPEDAttacked Attendants in Cottage with Chairs;
Twelve Retaken.

Several male patients at the Dixon state colony who were among the last consignment received from the Lincoln hospital on Labor day, mutinied at the B 1 cottage last evening just at dusk and fourteen made their escape. Two attendants were assaulted and beaten with chairs which were welded by the feeble minded men, who smashed windows in the cottage and jumped through them, running at random to various parts of the grounds.

The attendants were unable to stop the unexpected clash with the patients and both were cut and bruised in the battle, which was of short duration. In all, fourteen patients made their escape from the institution and at noon today, all but two of these had been found and returned. Five of the patients formed a group and boarded a north bound Illinois Central train, going to Freeport, where they were apprehended and locked up in the police station.

The local police were notified at once and searching parties were sent out on the north side. They were successful in capturing seven of the escaped patients who were returned to the colony. Two were still at large today.

Alleged Slayer of Bloomington Woman

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Denver, Colo., Sept. 12.—Postponement of the trial date of Bert J. Lowe charged with slaying his sister-in-law, Miss Edna Skinner of Bloomington, Ill., was obtained yesterday by his attorneys, according to a dispatch to the News here. The request was granted in order to give the defense an opportunity to exhumate the body of Miss Skinner for an examination by experts. The trial was originally set for Oct. 9 in the district court at Greeley, but will now come up Nov. 29.

The body of Miss Skinner, buried at Leroy, Ill., near Bloomington, was examined recently by Greeley officials.

Defense counsel announced they wished to find C. M. Bradford, a next door neighbor at the time Miss Skinner is alleged to have been slain and her body set afire. Bradford is said to have left Greeley and cannot be found.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 12.—Nomination of William Bruce, Democratic candidate, to oppose U. S. Senator Joseph I. France at the November election was made certain by today's returns in yesterday's primary. The threat of the Bruce victory in the three-sided contest still was uncertain because of confusion in counting of second choice votes but both he and Senator France, who defeated John F. Garrett, are assured of more than the necessary sixty-seven delegates to the nominating conventions.

CHICAGO POLICE
MAY HAVE KILLED
AN INNOCENT MANMan, Object of Raid, Later Surrendered
to Officers.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Sept. 12.—Police today sought to determine whether they had killed an innocent man, Charles E. Jacobson, who was shot and fatally wounded last night when he fled from a north side apartment when it was raided by postal inspectors and policemen.

Jacobson lived only long enough to tell the police he fled in fright when the raid took place.

Edward Nelson, the object of the raid, wanted for the robbery of a postal substation in Milwaukee in connection with which a policeman was killed, later appeared at the apartment and was arrested. The police say he admitted the Milwaukee robbery.

Mrs. Mary Labean Jacobson, wife of the slain man, Marjorie Vanderdort, George Hanson and Fred Burkhardt, as well as Jacobson, were in the flat when the raid was made. Jacobson and Burkhardt ran down the rear stairs. Jacobson was shot four times and the police say their fire was returned.

The police got on Nelson's trail when Mae Burns attempted to cash a money order which she said she obtained from Nelson.

The raiders said they found thirteen cases of whiskey in the apartment.

JUDGE REFUSED PLEA

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Circuit Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton denied this morning the motion of counsel for Governor Small and Lieutenant Governor Rieple that the civil suits against them be dismissed. He held that the Attorney General has authority to bring such an action against them as former state treasurers, and ordered the trial of the suits to proceed.

Judge Jones announced he would hear arguments on demurrers and other pleadings in Carrollton, Green county, on Friday, September 22. Attorney Werner W. Schroeder, representing Governor Small, stated he would file pleadings the latter part of the week, and indicated there would be five demurrers covering various allegations of the bill.

Judge Jones held first that the Attorney General had the right to bring suit without the sanction or approval of the Governor against a former treasurer charged with failure to properly account for public funds, and second that the suit was proper though not brought in the name of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

SUPREME COURT
DISTRICTS WILL STAY UNCHANGEDConstitutional Convention Changes Provisions.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Reopening the draft of the proposed new constitution which was completed three months ago the constitutional convention by a margin of three votes this morning adopted an amendment providing for increasing the supreme court to nine judges, three of whom shall come from the seventh district which includes Chicago. The vote was 55 to 24.

This amendment would leave the six downstate districts unchanged, and would give the seventh district judges, whereas it now has only one, a limitation by which the amendment provides that only two judges shall come from any one county, was opposed by Frederick A. DeYoung, of Chicago, who moved to amend so as to leave the way clear for election of all three seventh district judges from Cook county.

President Woodruff ruled Mr. DeYoung out of order, adding that the motion to reconsider would permit only of a vote on the question, without further amendment.

As adopted last June, the judiciary article proposed a supreme court of seven judges, as it is now, but changed the districts eliminating one downstate judge and giving Chicago two.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Revision of the judiciary section of the proposed new Constitution to give the supreme court nine instead of seven members, was to be considered by the Constitutional Convention meeting here this morning for what is expected to be the final session.

The convention was scheduled to convene at 10 o'clock. Leaders said they had secured enough votes to assure reopening the judiciary section to permit the change in the court membership, which carries with it a proposal to give the district in which Chicago is located three of the nine members of the court.

It will require a two-thirds vote or unanimous consent to have the section reopened, and a majority to pass the revision.

Many of the delegates believed the business of the convention would be completed by late this afternoon, while others who had in mind the possibility of changing the revenue section, stated the meeting might last several days.

The committee on submission and address met last night and rounded out the plans for presenting the new document to the voters. The constitution will be voted on at a special election December 12.

Bonus Bill Agreed
Upon By Conferees

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 12.—The soldiers' bonus bill was today in the form that it will go to President Harding, perhaps within ten days or two weeks.

Provisions added by the senate and believed by some proponents to make it possibly more objectionable to the executive than it was in the form passed by the house were eliminated by the conferees, who met unexpectedly yesterday and perfected the measure within three hours. Those provisions were:

Payment of the bonus out of interest from the $11,000,000,000 foreign debt and the Smith-McNary reclamation plan.

The bill was to be reported to the house today, but action on it both there and in the senate was to follow disposition of the conference report on the tariff measure.

Jackson, Calif., Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Ten feet were gained in the 3600-foot drift in the Kennedy mine last night by rescuers who are digging through from that mine to the Argonaut mine where forty-seven men are entombed. The men on the 3,600 foot level had 89 feet to go before they reached the rock which forms the last barrier between diggers and victims. Five additional feet were gained in the rock on the 3,560 level leaving a balance of 132 feet to go before the workers on this level reach the Argonaut.

It was announced there was no possible chance of reaching the men before Friday on either level.

BULLETIN.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 12.—The crisis in Mrs. Harding's condition "seems to have been passed," an official bulletin issued by attending physicians at 9:35 a. m., today said.

The text of the bulletin signed by Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, White House physician follows:

"Mrs. Harding's condition 8 a. m.:

Temperature 98.5; pulse, 94; respiration, 22. Early part of night restless. Latter part comfortable. General appearance improved. Enlargement due to nephrosis decreasing. Laboratory findings favorable. Crisis seems to have been passed. Surgical procedure deemed unnecessary for the present."

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 12.—Although Mrs. Harding's illness continued at a critical stage, indications at an early hour today were that there had been no loss of ground from the improvement reported in her condition yesterday and last night. The night passed with outward quiet at the White House and with the atmosphere of slight relief from the intense anxiety which has been felt there still evident.

Hope was held today that the steady improvement shown in the patient's condition throughout yesterday would prove to be a decisive turn for the better, although attending physicians, in expressing their optimism at yesterday's developments, made it plain that the crisis had not been passed.

May Delay Operation.

Decision as to whether surgical relief would be undertaken still was being deferred, early today by the five attending physicians, Brig. Gen. Sawyer, White House physician, having explained in the last official bulletin issued at 7:30 last night that "the course was being followed to 'wait localization of infection.'"

To that bulletin, which said Mrs. Harding had passed the most comfortable day since the critical turn in her illness, Dr. Carl Sawyer, son of Brig. Gen. Sawyer, added the informal statement at 10:05 p. m., that the patient's improvement was continuing.

President Harding retired at an early hour last night much encouraged, it was said by friends, over the improvement shown in his wife's condition. Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., of Columbus, Ohio, a brother of the President, told newspapermen yesterday that Mr. Harding had borne up under the strain of Mrs. Harding's illness as well as could be expected and that physically his condition was excellent.

Continued improvement with only slight possibility that it would be necessary to operate was the word that came today from the sick bed of Mrs. Harding.

I shall make of each day a canvass to hold
The thoughts that I dream but have never yet told;

The thoughts of the things I am longing to be,
And beauty to hear any beauty to see.
One thought is a picture of children that run Through tulips and poppies, and laugh in the sun.

And one is a picture of heaven afar
When no thought is stirring save only a star.

And one is a bird whose silver soft wings
Now flash and now fade, and forever he sings

The song that through ages has never been heard,
The music of silence, the unspoken word.

The pictures are many, but always the frame
Is over and over forever the same;

A desk and a chair and a silent brick wall,
And a border of duty surrounding it all.

SHEAFF-STEVENS—

Rochelle, Sept. 11.—Miss Harriett Sheaff, daughter of Frank E. Sheaff, of Holcomb, and Harold P. Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jabez R. Stevens, of Rochelle, were quietly married at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John P. Snyder, 1715 Oxford street, Rockford, at 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. The Rev. John Gordon of the Second Congregational church, Rockford, read the nuptial service. The wedding was simple in detail because of the recent death of the bride's mother, Mrs. F. E. Sheaff.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a simple frock of navy blue canton crepe with buckle trimmings and a corsage bouquet. Following the service an informal reception was held and refreshments served. Guests numbering twenty-five included only relatives of the bride and groom. Garden flowers were used in the home decorations.

Mr. Stevens and his bride left immediately after the ceremony on a two weeks' motor trip to Wisconsin lakes, after which they will reside in Holcomb with the bride's father. The bride wore a blue tulle costume with gray crepe and coral trimming for traveling.

Miss Sheaff is a graduate of Rockford high school and of the National Kindergarten College, Chicago. She taught in Grand Island, Neb., a year, and for the past year has been teaching in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Stevens was graduated from Rochelle high school in 1912, and is at present associated with his brother in the R. I. Stevens, Corporation, an out-of-doors advertising concern. He is president of the Illinois club, and served for twenty months overseas in the World War as a non-commissioned officer in the Gold Cross Division of the army.

Among the guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stevens and family, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stevens, all of Rochelle; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wells, of Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Sheaff, F. E. Sheaff and Miss Helen Sheaff, all of Holcomb; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Sheaff, Mrs. Mary Sheaff and Mr. and Mrs. A. Conant and Mrs. C. C. Conant of Rockford.

PETERSON-BEHR—

A wedding of much interest to Dixon people is explained in the following article from the Clinton Advertiser of Saturday. Dr. and Mrs. Behr are residing in Dixon at 1105 West Fourth street, Dixon. The Advertiser says:

A pretty home wedding of early autumn was solemnized this afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Karen C. Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Peterson of the Second avenue road, became the bride of Charles C. Behr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dettlef Behr, 259 Peck avenue. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride which was beautifully decorated with roses and ferns. Dev. J. S. Leamer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiated and used the impressive double ring ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Lillian Behr, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and Ernest Peterson, brother of the bride, was best man. Only the immediate families of the bride couple were present at the wedding.

The bride was charming in a gown of navy blue canton crepe with silver lace trimmings. She carried a bride's bouquet of pink roses with a shower of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was attired in navy blue tulle and her flowers were a corsage bouquet of white roses.

At 5 o'clock a wedding supper was served in the dining room, the table lavishly with baskets of pink and white roses.

The bride is a popular young woman of Clinton and has been in the employ of the advertising department of the John D. Van Allen & Son for the past seven years. She attended the Clinton Business college. Mr. Behr is a chiropractor, with his office located at Dixon, Ill. He is a graduate of Clinton High school, class 1919, and a graduate of the Davenport School of Chiropractic.

Mr. and Mrs. Behr will make their home in Dixon.

Ernest Peterson of Blairtown, Ia., and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Behr of Low Moor, were out-of-town guests at the wedding.

DOMINATION OF UNIONS DOOMED SAYS MR. GLENN

Says People Will Not Tolerate Murder Any Longer.

By Associated Press Licensed Wire

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Reasons why business ought to be good were pointed out by John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers Association at a luncheon today, in which he compared the railroads to the heart and circulation system of the human body.

"The Lord has blessed us with a wonderful crop including practically everything that comes from the soil," he said. "Financial conditions are favorable and there is a disposition on the part of all classes to go into the market."

"These carriers, both steam and electric," said Mr. Glenn, referring to the railroad situation, "may be regarded as the heart of business and talk of any kind of legislation or regulation will arouse widespread discussion."

Mr. Glenn declared that if the government continues regulation of the railroads, "it will also have to include as carriers those who transport goods and passengers in automobiles for hire."

One thing in connection with transportation, "which seems to be solving itself is trade union domination," Mr. Glenn said. "It looks as if the American people have reached a point where they would no longer tolerate being held up or having the demands of unions enforced with murder, the wrecking of trains and destruction by fire and dynamite."

THE MAN WITHOUT A FRIEND

Out of the world, and by the world forgotten, was the pitiful experience of John Gurchison, an American student who has just been released from a German prison at Heidelberg, nerve frenzied and mind-obsessed. A man without a single friend he was during eleven years of abject abandonment.
Gurchison spent his childhood in a New York founding asylum. He got along in life; earned a year at Yale university; and then he won a scholarship at the University of Heidelberg. He had ambition, and even if he lacked the magnetic faculty of making at least one fast friend, the possibilities described by his determination should have elicited the passive interest of some benevolent human being.

Not long after entering Heidelberg, Gurchison killed a German student in a duel. He was sentenced to prison for five years. Six years were added to the penalty for a vain attempt to escape from the place of bondage.

Gurchison served the full term of eleven years. When he arrived in Paris the American Aid society took charge of him. He knew nothing about the World war, but it was plain that he was on intimate terms with horror. He was delicious with terrible recollections of the maddening Gangster. His once brilliant memory was almost a vacuum.

There are many instances exemplifying that the punishment administered is often a more barbarous crime than the offense for which it is decreed.
But this case of inhuman treatment is exceptionally startling. The prison officials and attendants must have had neither reasoning power nor sympathy, and they probably believed that mercy was alien to their stern, official duty.

But what was most impressive in the miserable isolation of Gurchison is that he is, or was, the man without a friend. For it is said in Paris that nobody seemed to have tried to obtain his release. When the heavy doors of prison closed on him he departed from the world almost as finally as if he had been buried in the ground.

Are there not many persons who would not be missed if they disappeared from their social groups? Are there not many who are friendless?
There are thousands of men and women, boys and girls, in whose lives and prospects no one is interested.
Each of us has his own selfish concerns to think of, and a passing friend or acquaintance, is like a dead friend, soon and easily forgotten.

FEDERAL AND STATE CONTROL OF FUEL

It will be practically imperative for the federal and state governments to undertake to regulate the distribution and allotment of coal for at least two and probably three months. It would be a serious mistake for the business interests and the public to imagine that the settlement of the bi-luminous coal strike means that coal is now and will be easy to buy.

There are several difficulties which will have to be controlled. Coal must be delivered into remote districts in the north and west while weather conditions are element. At the same time coal must be delivered to factories in all parts of the country.

By regulating the distribution and allotment of coal it will be possible to prevent such competition as would drive prices up. It will prevent car shortage and fuel famine in cold weather. It will enable the factories to operate and give employment to millions of men and women, and the pay earned by the employees will provide the buying power to absorb farm products and stimulate wholesale and retail trade.

The public must take this large view of the predicament. And it must see that this large view is really the best selfish view. The federal state governments should have general and hearty cooperation in working out the fuel embarrassment.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL PROBLEM

In spite of our vaunted educational progress, 38 per cent of the school children of the United States still are receiving their education in one and two-teacher rural schools. The country school problem has not been solved yet.

If percentages mean little to the reader it may be noted that this 38 per cent represents 8,400,000 children.
What is more, the per capita annual expenditure for their education is only $24, as against $40 a child in city schools. The rural school terms average a month shorter than those of the town institution. Half of the rural teachers, about 150,000, have completed a four-year high school course; 30,000 have finished only the eighth grade.

There is something wrong here.
The value of education is accepted generally and the right of every child to proper school advantages, but a fair balance has not been struck when this sort of conditions rule the educational surroundings of nearly half the children in the nation. Local state and national effort should cooperate to bring this weak percentage up to a standard commensurate with the rest.

TONICS FOR PALE TREES

Fruit trees with pale leaves, like children with pale cheeks, are suffering from undernourishment. The children need more vitamins, the trees more nitrogen. So important a part do the nitrates play in the life of trees and the development of fruit that experts warn the grower who wants large crops, fine fruits and high prices to see that his charges get their tonic in time.

Part of this nitrogenous diet may be supplied by the use of ordinary manure early in the spring, but at any time during the season when it is noted that the foliage is turning pale green or yellow a dose of the commercial nitrates is indicated. The New Jersey agricultural experiment station suggests for an average apple soil an application of from 150 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda and 400 to 500 pounds of acid phosphate an acre, with an additional dose of 100 pounds of an acre of muriate of sulphate of potash for very light soils.

Eternal vigilance in such matters is the price of a healthy farm, and the farmer of the present day is fortunate in having the county, state and national agricultural organizations to provide him with a suitable diet list for his fields and orchards.
The farmer of a former generation just had to go it blind, trying first one thing and then another, until it was no wonder that the old farm was frequently allowed to run down.

FLYING LIKE THE BIRDS

Has the air been finally conquered?
Glen H. Curtiss, the American airplane inventor, announces that he has designed and practically perfected a glider which rises abruptly from the water and alights in the water.
He predicts that the time is not remote when man will fly over the sea
like the albatross.

The Curtiss invention seems to mark the most advanced progress in the development of aerial transportation.
But the recent gliding flights in Germany are of almost equal moment.

Glider are planes operated without motors. They are heavier than air, and they are propelled and regulated by adjustment to air currents.
The devices used in the German exhibition are ordinary monoplanes and winged craft resembling birds.

The statement made by Mr. Curtiss that man some day in the near future will fly like the albatross denotes the scientific importance both of his new plane and also of the device demonstrated in Germany. It has been the opinion of the most reliable experts that aerial transportation would be realized at last by actually mastering
the air.

Two hundred scientists and writers

thirty in Petrograd on the assumption that they are unfriendly to the soviet government. If they are really scientists and writers the soviet need no hold them on suspicion or assumption, but judge them by their brains.

It means—to tease; to reproach,

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Bates

TINGLING FINDS BEWITCHED TWINS.

"It's our beloved Mr. Tingling!"

After walking until he could scarcely stand up, Mr. Tingling, the fairy-man, stopped beside Farmer Smith's sage-patch garden.

He was looking for the Twins whom Flap-Doodle, a mischievous fairy, had turned into two white rabbits.

"Who-ee, it's hot!" he exclaimed.
"I've just looked everywhere. I'll soon begin to think those Twins aren't on this earth. Old Sprinkle-Blow will have to ride his magic umbrella and look up among the stars next, I guess."

Suddenly he stopped talking and fanning, for out from under the fence stole two little white rabbits, making straight for the lettuce bed.

"I'll bet those are the two rabbits all the creatures have been telling me about," he whispered to himself. "If I can just get near enough without scaring them, perhaps they can tell me whether or not they have seen the Twins."

So Tingling squeezed his fat body between the fence palings and went tiptoeing to the lettuce-bed as softly

as you walk in your stocking feet
when the baby is asleep.

But what was his surprise when,
instead of running away at the sight of so queer a creature as himself, the rabbits gave two joyful hops right toward him, almost knocking him over.

"Oh, oh, oh! It's our beloved Mr.
Tingling!" said one rabbit.
"My, but we're glad to see you!"
said the other rabbit.

Mr. Tingling was completely flabbergasted.

"I—you—excuse me, but I don't believe I have ever met you before, have I?" he remarked in a puzzled voice.

"Of course you have," cried both white rabbits together. "We're Nancy and Nick. Flap-Doodle bewitched us and then flew away."

"Stars and moons!" exclaimed the fat fairyman.

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well.

NORMAL DEVELOPMENT

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

Each one of us has a certain normal size to attain. Whether we reach this size or not depends largely on the first few years of our life. If we have good care and are well nourished up to the age of five or six, the chances are we shall reach that normal height and weight.

There are two periods when the growth of children is especially marked. They are, first, from six to nine years of age in boys and girls, and second, from 11 to 13 in girls and from 14 to 16 in boys.

Increase in weight should be followed by an increase in height.

Whenever there is an increase in height in progress, the child is apt to become thin and anemic. This is because the making of bone quickly uses up the red corpuscles in the blood. The child becomes nervous and irritable and requires extra care, both at home and in school. He should have plenty of rest at this period, and care must be taken in the selection of his diet. He should not be pushed ahead at school, and if worried over his studies, a vacation

may be desirable.

Proper nutrition plays a large part in satisfactory growth and development.

Easily digestible food is important during infancy and childhood.

A healthy appetite for plain, health-producing food should be cultivated from the beginning. Much dyspepsia and ill health in later life is due to early food irregularity or indulgence in wrong kinds of food.

The mental growth must be carefully watched from the beginning,
as the impressions made on our mind during childhood are ones we carry all through life.

That brilliant member of the Secret Service whom England preferred to know as ANDRE DUCHEMIN, had incurred the hatred of the Bolsheviks. To protect his life, his superiors ordered him to disappear. He decided to go to southern France. With Stevenson's travels with a Donkey as guide-book he visited by moonlight that weird city of monoliths, famous Montpellier-le-Vieux.

Entering this sinister desert, his attention was attracted by the skulking actions of a bulky individual in the uniform of the A. E. F.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

Battling By Moonlight

NOW the last of the A. E. F. had long since fled far and away to the shores of France. Then, too, Monsieur Duchemin knew that the uniform of the Americans had more than frequently been used by those ancient acquaintances of his, the Apaches of Paris, as a cloak for their own misdoings. So it didn't need the air of stealth that marked this business to persuade him there was mischief in the brew.

He got in motion to investigate without stopping to debate an excuse for so doing, and several seconds before he heard a woman's cry.

Duchemin broke into a run that carried him round still a corner and plunged him headlong into the theater of villainy.

This was open ground—a rudely oval pit little less than seven hundred feet in its narrowest diameter and something like four hundred in depth, a vast black void against whose darkness the blue-white moonlight etched a strange grouping of figures, seven in all.

On his one hand Duchemin saw a woman in mourning clasp to her bosom a terrified young girl, the author of the screams; on the other, three men close-clothed in grimiest combat, one of them, a third woman with her back to and perilously near the chasm, shrinking from the threat of a pistol in the hands of the fourth man.

This last was the one nearest Duchemin, who was upon him so suddenly that it would be difficult to say which was the more surprised when Duchemin's stick struck down the pistol hand of the other with such force as must have broken his wrist. The weapon fell, he uttered an oath as he swung round, clutching the maimed member; and then, seeing his assailant for the first time, he swooped down to recover the weapon so swiftly that it was in his left hand and spitting vicious tongues of orange flame before Duchemin was able to get in a second blow.

But there was the abrupt end of that passage. Smitten cruelly between the eyes, the fellow gaunted thickly and went reeling backwards like a bundle of rag and bone, and shoulders jutting out over the brink of the precipice so far that, though his body checked perceptibly as it struck the ground, his own weight carried him on, he shot out into space and vanished as though some unseen hand had lifted up from these dark depths and plucked him down to annihilation.

The young girl shrieked again, the woman gave a gasp of horror, Duchemin himself knew a sickly qualm. But he had no time to spare for that; it was going ill with the man contending against two.

The adventurer's stick might have been bewitched that night, so magical was its work, a single blow on the nearest head (but believe me it was selected with care) and instantaneously that knot of contention was resolved into its three several parts. The smitten clapped hands to his hurt, moaning. His brother scoundrel started back with staring eyes in which rage gave place to dismay as he grasped the change in the situation and saw the stick swinging for his head in turn. He ducked neatly; the stick whistled through thin air; and before Duchemin could recover the other had turned and was running for dear life.

Duchemin delayed a bare instant; but manifestly his assistance was no more needed here. In a breath he who had been so recently out-matched recoiled his wits and took the initiative with admirable address. Duchemin saw him fly furiously at his late opponent, trip and lay him on his back; then Duchemin turned and gave chase to the fugitive.

His head overhanging the edge of the floor.

Waiting in the middle of a broad avenue of misshapen obelisks, a dilapidated barouche on either side its pole dropped two sorry specimens of crowlaid. And their pained amazement was so unforgotten that Duchemin laughed aloud when the fat rogue bounded to the box, snatched up reins and whip and curled a cruel lash round their bony flanks.

Since it took them some moments to come to their senses and appreciate that all this was not an evil dream, Duchemin's hands were clutching the back of the carriage when the horses broke suddenly into an awkward, lumbering gallop. The moment Duchemin found his own feet in the swaying vehicle he espied on the shoulders of the other and dragged him backwards from the box.

What followed was not very clear to him, a melange of impressions. The mock-American fought like a devil unchained. The animals at the pole ran away in good earnest, that wretched barouche rolled and pitched like a rudderless shell in a crazy sea, the two men floundered in its well like fish in a pail.

They fought by no rules, with no science, but hit and kicked and gouged and wrenched and struck as occasion offered and each to the best of his ability. Duchemin caught glimpses of a face hideously distorted with working features and disfigured with smears of soot through which insane eyeballs rolled and glared in the moonlight. Then a hand like a vice gripped his windpipe, he was on his back, his head overhanging the edge of the floor, a thumb was feeling for one of his eyes. Yet it could not have been much later when he and his opponent were standing and swaying as one, locked in an embrace of wrestlers.

Still, Duchemin knew as many tricks of hand-to-hand fighting as the other, perhaps a few more. And then he was, no doubt, in far better condition. At all events the fellow was presently at his mercy. In a hold that gave one the privilege of breaking his back at will. A man of mistaken scruples, Duchemin failed to do so. A thrust and a kick, which he enjoyed infinitely, sent the brute spinning out to land on his side.

The fall should have broken his neck. At the worst it should have stunned him. Evidently it didn't. When Duchemin had scrambled up to the box, captured the reins and brought the nags to a stop, he saw no signs of his Apache by the roadside.

Not five figures but four only were waiting beside the cirque when, wheeling the barouche as near the group as the lay of the ground permitted, he climbed down. A man lay at length in the coarse grass, his head pillowed in the lap of one woman. Another woman stood aside, trembling and wringing agitated hands. The third knelt beside the supine man, but rose quickly as Duchemin drew near, and came to meet him.

In this one he recognized her to whose salvation Chance had first led him, and now found time to appreciate a face of pained loveliness, intelligent and composed, while she addressed him quietly and directly. An exquisite voice. English, he guessed, or possibly American, but much at home in France.

"Monsieur d'Aubrac has been wounded, a knife thrust. It will be necessary to get him to a surgeon as quickly as possible."

"If monsieur would be so good," Duchemin knelt beside the man, who welcomed him with open eyes and a wry smile that was almost as faint as his voice.

"It is nothing, monsieur—a clean cut in the arm, with some loss of blood."

The young girl in whose lap rested the head of Monsieur d'Aubrac sat back and watched Duchemin with curious, grave eyes in which traces of moisture glistened.

"Had the animal at my mercy, I thought," d'Aubrac apologized, "when suddenly he drew that knife, struck me and broke away."

"I understand," Duchemin replied. "But don't talk. You'll want all your strength, my friend."

With his pocket-knife he laid open the sodden sleeves of coat and shirt, exposing an upper arm stained dark with blood that welled in ugly jets from a cut both wide and deep.

"A very severe," he announced, and straightened up and looked about, at a loss. "My pack—"

The woman who had spoken to him found and fetched it from no great distance; and its contents a bandage, and when the flow of blood was checked, a bandage.

With d'Aubrac disposed as comfortably as might be in the barouche, Duchemin turned to find the other women at his elbow.

To the eldest he offered a bow suited to her condition and a hand to help her into the barouche. "Madame . . ."

The gentle inclination of the aged head which acknowledged his courtesy was as eloquent of her quality as he found the name which she gave him in quavering accents.

"Madame de Levenis, monsieur." "With madame's permission: I am Andre Duchemin."

"Monsieur Duchemin has placed us all deeply in his debt. Louise . . ."

The girl in the carriage looked up and bowed, murmuring, "Mademoiselle de Montalais, monsieur; my granddaughter. And Eve . . ."

She turned to the third, to her whose voice of delightful accent was not in Duchemin's notion wholly French: "Madame de Montalais, my daughter by adoption, widow of my grandson, who died gloriously for his country at La Fere-Champe noise."

then visited where sweet clover was found growing luxuriantly on plots that had been treated with limestone, while practically no sweet clover was found where the soil was untreated and showed an acid or sour reaction. The corn on the treated plots appeared to be 20 to 30 bushels better than on the untreated plots, and yet even the untreated plots are promising a yield which is perhaps about the average of Lee county principally because of a good rotation of corn, oats, clover and wheat is followed on this land making clover every fourth year, which is much better than many Lee county farmers practice. Many of the farmers on the trip were much surprised to see the great difference between the treated and untreated plots.

F. W. Galt of the Illinois Experiment Station explained clearly the method of conducting the Experiment field with differences in crop yields that have shown up during the last few years.

The next stop was at the Clark Young farm southeast of Dixon where sweet clover was found growing near a road where limestone dust had blown over the fence for years, and yet a little farther in the field little, if any, clover was growing, and soil tests taken at different places from the road back showed a gradual increase of acid or sour soil, according to the new potassium thiocyanate test now used by the Farm Bureau.

The last stop was made at the Swartz & Miller farm in Nelson township, where considerable landscape gardening has been worked out around this farm home. Mr. Swartz showed the party over sweet clover pasture sown this spring with oats which accompanied most of the brood sows with their pigs, and a number of head of cattle, and yet there was plenty of pasture left. Also corn with soy beans both for hogging off and for silage. Mr. Swartz then took the party through his hog sleeping shed, which has accommodated even better than some farm homes. An automatic drinking fountain provides pure water winter or summer, and day or night, and a thorough ventilating system provides plenty of fresh air. Just outside large floors and concrete walks make it possible for the farmer to feed and care for the hogs without waste of feed or wading around in mud. In the farrowing house were seen a number of litters of fall pigs and one farmer remarked that this hog house was clean enough to sleep in, and no doubt Mr. Miller, the caretaker, has spent many nights in caring for the young pigs.

From all indications those who were fortunate enough to take this trip were well pleased in what was seen and heard during the day, and many have expressed regrets that they did not go on this tour.

CLEMENCEAU TO TELL AMERICANS AIMS OF FRENCH DURING WAR

"Tiger" Plans Visit to This Country for Purpose.

Paris, Sept. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Georges Clemenceau is going to the United States primarily to plead the cause of France, he told a correspondent of the Petit Parisien, who went to his summer home at Jard to question him concerning his contemplated trip.

"I ought not to talk to you," he said. "It is to the Americans I want to speak and to whom it is urgent to speak, but if I told you what I expect to tell them then it would not be worth while taking the boat. What I want is not to be read, but to be heard."

"No one speaks for France—no one and the time has indeed come. I will not say anything about conferences—that is not my business—but this is the moment to tell the United States that they are making a mistake—that we are neither militarists, nor imperialists, and that the French people deserves the enthusiastic confidence of its friend."

The interviewer asked if he is to speak of the war to which he replied: "Aim of War is Peace."

"Yes, and first of all to recall that elementary truth that the aim of war is peace; then to say that if the allies remained in peace what they were in war, the world would not be struggling in the midst of so much wretchedness and so many difficulties. To the Americans I shall say much about America and also a little about England."

"And about the treaty?" suggested the interviewer.

"Yes, indeed, I shall have something to say about that," was the reply. "It must be made clear once for all or once more, that this treaty removes all pretext for a war of revenge by the Germans.

"What I have to say to Americans, is simply and softly—simply because America is a country of things simple and upright, and softly, because the Americans are our greatest friends."

Chicago Templars in Auto Went Into Ditch

LaSalle, Ill., Sept. 11.—An automobile, one of thirty-eight machines carrying Knights Templars from Chicago to the convales in Peoria, left the road and turned over near Lemont, Ill., this morning. The occupants, all men from the Englewood district of Chicago, escaped injury and proceeded with other members of the party. Their names were not obtained by the police here.

This summer had more daylight waning than daylight saving.

750,000 License Plates Ordered

Contracts have been let for 750,000 pairs of state automobile plates for use next year. Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson has announced. At least that many will be needed, he said. The plates next year will be olive green with white numerals. The plates this year, with the hyphen separating the last three numerals from the first three proved very popular and this style will be followed again in 1923.

Secretary Emmerson was pleased with the bids he received this year. The new batch of plates will be made at a saving of approximately $50,000 over the cost of the plates two years ago.

PUT IN SOME COAL NOW

Not in the 50 years we have been in business has such a serious condition confronted the domestic consumer of Coal.

There is no hard coal obtainable at any price. We doubt if there will be one-fourth of the normal supply available before January 1st, 1923. The New England States and the East will get priority on Anthracite as they are nearer the mines.

Good grades of soft coal will continue scarce and high in price. The retailer has nothing to say about the price of coal at the mines or the freight rates from the mine to his community. The coal dealer adds only a reasonable margin for handling and profit to the cost of the coal. Practically the same amount is added for the dealers' handling charge, whether the cost is high or low.

We are interested in furnishing our customers with the best coal we can buy and at the lowest price. Present conditions lead us to believe that every consumer should immediately order a small amount of whatever coal his dealer may have or can secure.

FARMERS MADE TOUR OF INSPECTION OVER LEE CO. LAST WEEK

Very Interesting Trip By 75 Farmers Who Sought Advice.

(By Lee Co. Farm Bureau)

About 75 farmers made an automobile trip arranged by the Lee County Farm Bureau to see a number of different farm practices on Lee County farms last week. The trip included territories near Ambloy, Lee Center, Franklin Grove, Dixon and Harmon. At the farms of Jos. Nicholson and John Bros. near Lee Center four different methods of treating alkali soil were shown, each one being about equal in overcoming the alkali conditions. Soy bean varieties were also inspected at the Nicholson farm both in corn and planted alone. Mr. Nicholson's experience of about 22 years with growing soy beans has led him to choose one or two varieties as being outstandingly better than most others for planting with corn. A number of soil tests were made on these two farms, showing that lime stone was not needed.

At the Chas. Jeannette farm sweet clover was found growing near a road where limestone dust had blown for years from the road to the field, sweetening the soil sufficiently to allow a good stand of sweet clover. A little farther in the field a soil test showed an acid or sour condition and little if any sweet clover was found on this soil.

At the Ben Richwine farm a very good field of soy beans of the A. K. variety were found growing and ap peared to be a crop that would make a good yield of seed.

Soy Bean Varieties
At the E. R. Buck farm at Franklin Grove three different varieties of soy beans were inspected growing side by side all of which presented a very pleasant appearance of dark green color, while most other vegetation was beginning to turn brown. Last year Mr. Buck had a good yield of almost 30 bushels per acre of soy beans, and expects an equally good yield this year.

Most of the men and women making the tour stopped at the Blue Bird hotel at Assembly park for dinner, although a number brought picnic dinner and ate in the grove.

Following the noon hour the next stop was made at the Dixon Cow

Testing plant where sixteen Holstein cows are on test for milk and butter fat production. Mr. Long, Secretary of the State Holstein Association, brought out the fact that this plant was not one to show economical methods of milk production, but was conducted for the purpose of seeing how much milk and butter fat a cow could produce without taking into account feed cost. Farmers from all over the state have sent cows to this plant, and pay a prorated cost for taking care of the cattle for the year or less that they are on test. Off-springs from high producing cows are thus made of much greater value than if no records were available from the cows that are tested.

VAILE AND O'MALLEY

BACKUS HERO OF ARTICLE IN "WAKE OF NEWS"

Is Called "Buzzard de Lux" By Editor Woodruff.

Under the caption "Buzzard Unmasked," the Wake of the News in last Wednesday's Chicago Tribune had the following concerning Carl Backus, former Dixon man:

Now that The Wake has qualified without difficulty and has been duly elected a life member of the Ancient Order of Free and United Buzzards—which has members all over the United States, Manila, England, and even Japan—we feel at liberty to explain, in part, its mysteries.

The order came into being with the founding of the Home Roost at Kenosha Country club during the summer of 1920. A foursome consisting of one expert, Claude Backus, now vice Buzzard, and three novices were playing.

At hole two the expert after putting out gleefully, announced he had made an "eagle." At hole 3 it was a "birdie." At hole 4 Carl C. Backus, now Buzzard de Luxe, began dancing around on the putting green, waving his clubs in great excitement, exclaiming that he was a Buzzard. The expert asked, "What in hell is a Buzzard?"

"You made an eagle on 2 and a birdie on 3, which is very good golf," replied Carl. "Now anybody that takes ten or more strokes on one hole certainly is a Buzzard, and I just took fourteen."

The idea "took" for eligible members were numerous. At the end of the season Carl Backus was presented a gold medal as champion Buzzard of the world, and F. L. Wolfe, now Grand Secretary, with another gold medal as champion runner up.

When a Buzzard is playing with a new member who is falling down badly it is customary to steal up to him and whisper, "I hear the flapping of their wings." If the non-member takes the razzing in proper spirit while counting ten or over for the hole he is eligible to membership.

The Wake thinks there is a great future for this order in Chicago. We will undertake to place in communication with the national officers eligible wishing to establish additional local Roosts.

Strikers Did Not Return at Joliet

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 11.—When the gates of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railroad yards opened here this morning after an invitation to the 1800 striking shop men to return to their positions under the same conditions as before they walked out, hundreds of strikers lined the streets and roads about the shops but no sign of labor was seen within.

John Herrigan, superintendent of motive power of the railroad, said however, that quite of a number returned to work but refused to give any estimate.

Leaders of the striking shop men said not a man had returned to work in response to the railroad's individual invitations. Work will not be resumed, they said, until the national strike is settled. Neutral observers stationed near the shops this morning when the day's work was to have begun saw only the men outside. There was no sign of activity inside the shops.

May Delay Opening of League Seasons

New York, Sept. 11.—The start of the 1922 major league baseball season will be moved back a week, from April 19 to April 17, according to a decision said to have been reached among club owners and revealed today.

The change was regarded as largely in the interest of New York clubs, giving the Yankees additional time to prepare for the opening of their new stadium at Harlem, and the Giants chance to complete reconstruction of a large part of the Polo grounds.

According to plans, the Giant owners will remove the entire bleacher sections and in their place extend the double decked right and left field stands, leaving an open space in center field. When rebuilt, the stadium will seat 55,000 persons.

ALL HAVE LOST BY IRISH WAR IS DEVALERA'S PLEA

Insists Revision Must Be Made in Treaty to Stop War.

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Manchester Evening News today published an interview by its Dublin correspondent with Eamon De Valera, the Irish republican leader, who appeared to the interview to be in good health and who discussed the military and political situation in Ireland freely.

The correspondent quotes Mr. De Valera as saying he is still opposed to the treaty with Great Britain in its present form, but as suggesting that some revision can be obtained if men of good will set themselves to the task. Without such a revision, he declared there would be violent political agitation and turmoil in one form or another in Ireland for many years, while for England it would mean a continuance of the impossible relations which had resulted in the war of the last few years.

Mr. De Valera insisted that the Clatter question was an Irish domestic question and that it must be settled in Ireland by the representatives of the people concerned.

The treaty meant the coercion of the south and coercion of a large part of the north of Ireland, he insisted. "No one has gained by the war and all have lost by it," was the republican leader's summing up of the whole position in Ireland.

BASE HITS

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Only four games are scheduled for today in the major leagues, the Tigers clashing with the Browns in St. Louis and the Indians with the White Sox in Chicago in the American League, while Pittsburgh plays Boston and the Cardinals meet the Phillies in the two National League contests.

With Babe Ruth hitting two homers and two doubles yesterday, the Yankees had no difficulty in defeating the Athletics, 9-4. The Bambino's clouts accounting for six of the tallies. The Browns maintained their position one and a half games in the rear of the Yanks by winning from Detroit 5-4.

The Giants increased their lead over Pittsburgh for the National League pennant to five and one-half games by taking a double header yesterday from Boston. The score in each game was 7-6. These were the only contests in the National League.

Washington defeated Boston 12-3 in the only other major league contest, the game between the Chicago Americans and Cleveland being postponed because of rain.

Ruth's two homers brought his total for the season to 31, just six behind Ken Williams, the 1922 leader for home run honors.

George Kelly did some heavy hitting for the Giants in their double header with the Braves. He collected a homer, a double and three singles in seven times at bat.

The White Sox and Indians will try for the third time today to play their final game of the season. The game originally scheduled for Sunday, was stopped by rain and put off.

PHILADELPHIA — Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight beat Ever Hammer of Chicago in 8 rounds.

JOPLIN, Mo.—Joplin won the 1922 pennant of the Western Association.

America's Greatest Melodramatic Comedy

THE NIGHTCAP

By Max Marcin and Guy Bolton

SCENE IN "THE NIGHTCAP"

The Chicago Public and Critics Say That—

The cast is perfectly delightful. The women beauties who are clever. The men admirable comedians.

Amy Leslie, The News.

A deftly tricked melodrama with priceless comic trimmings. It's good sport and keen fun; this very expert piece of workmanship.

Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner.

"The Nightcap" is far superior to "The Bat" for its comedy is never of the vaudeville variety.

Journal of Commerce.

This attraction comes direct from its long stay at the Playhouse, Chicago, where it played to capacity business for eight solid months and one year in New York City at the Bijou Theatre. This should be an event of the season—this rare treat; with a metropolitan cast and production such as "The Nightcap" is not often sent en tour with everything that has been seen in the two largest centers of the world, Chicago and New York. Max Marcin and Guy Bolton, who wrote this mystery play, have to their credit such successes as "Sally," "Cheating Cheaters," "The House of Glass," "Oh Boy" and many others. The cast is of the best, having such metropolitan players as Karl L. Way, formerly of "The Bat," Bob Jones, Madeline Hoover, Howard D. Walsh, John C. Daly, Norman Wendall, Herbert Lewis, Cora King and many others.

The advance seat sale now on at box office.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO ?

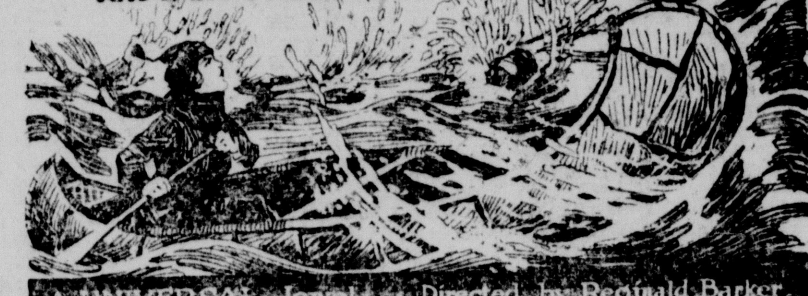

If

You were a young girl
And a tremendous blizzard
Forced you to remain
For three months
Shut up in a cabin
Up in the North Woods
Hundreds of miles
Away from civilization
Alone with a rugged woodsman
And a polished gentleman
Both professing love for you
And there was no possible
Chance of escape
Nor communication with the outside world
And you knew
If you admitted love
For one — it meant
The other would KILL him
Would You Do What the French Canadian Girl Did?

KINDRED OF THE DUST

"Kindred of the Dust" is the type of picture which the patrons of this theatre prefer and we are sure you will enjoy every foot of it. It is one of the big ones. A picture for everybody, and especially for those who are hard to please.

"It has more human appeal than any picture I have ever made," says R. A. Walsh, and he certainly has made some mighty pictures.

Peter B. Kyne wrote it and you know Pete; he writes the best of them.
